The FCC is jurisdictionally required to promote and to protect the PUBLIC- not private - INTEREST. That interest is eloquently and dramatically expressed by the unprecedentedly voluminous and almost unanimous public comments protesting any June 2, 2003 vote for more media consolidation. Any vote permitting more media monopolization would clearly violate FCC fiduciary responsibilities and its jurisdictional authority. The American people will not tolerate any more sleazy corporate crony monopoly give-aways and "clear channelization" of their priceless public airwaves.
